

More Choices for Your Fertility & Family-Building Care

More options. More locations to receive care. More support along the way.

Through your employer's partnership with Kindbody, you have access to fertility and family-building benefits designed to support you and your family throughout your care journey.

Kindbody is expanding its network of providers nationwide, giving members and covered family members more choices for high-quality fertility and family-building care closer to home.

What This Means For You

As the Kindbody network expands, you'll have access to:

- More providers and clinics — Access a growing network of clinics nationwide
- More options closer to home — Find in-network care in more locations across the country
- More provider choice — Explore providers that fit your location, needs, and preferences
- Continued benefit support — Your Kindbody fertility & family-building benefit remains in place
- Personalized guidance — Your Kindbody Care Team is available to help you understand your options and navigate your care

If You Are Currently Receiving Care

In most cases, no action is needed.

As the network expands, some members may experience a change in their current care location.

If you are directly impacted, your Kindbody Care Team will contact you personally to discuss your care, understand your preferences, and help you identify the best next steps.

Your care and experience are important to us, and we'll be here to support you through any transition that may be necessary.

Your Kindbody fertility and family-building benefit remains in place.

Quality Care. More Options.

Every provider in the Kindbody network is evaluated based on factors such as clinical quality, outcomes, access, member experience, and care coordination.

The goal of expanding the network is to give you greater access to quality care while making it easier to find a provider that works for you.
